

Toyota Corolla Full Of New Year Promise

12 December 2005

Revised Colour Collection model for 2006

KEY POINTS

- New-season five-door Colour Collection with climate control, heated electric door mirrors and 15-inch alloys
- On sale now

All too often the move into a new year provokes a mood of self denial and a determination to shed pounds and shun booze. Toyota is displaying a more generous spirit by giving its Corolla customers more rather than less choice. True, there are no free chocolates or whisky to be had, but the incentive to buy is stronger than ever before with extra equipment specification for the five-door Corolla Colour Collection.

We may be promised the coldest winter in years, but the new Toyota Corolla Colour Collection lets owners keep out the chill with climate controlled air conditioning now provided as standard. And to make those early morning starts less finger-numbing, the electrically adjustable door mirrors are equipped with heaters for quick clearing.

The interior gains a smart new appearance with a brushed metal effect centre console and a silver fleck seat fabric. To complete the New Year new look, there is a set of bespoke six-spoke 15-inch alloy wheels and a metallic paint finish in Silver Steel, Ixion Blue or Eclipse Black.

These features are in addition to an established Colour Collection specification that includes front fog lamps, front, front side and curtain airbags, a sound system with CD player, electric windows and a leather trimmed steering wheel with audio controls.

The new Corolla Colour Collection is available now, exclusively in five-door hatchback body style, with the choice of 1.4 and 1.6-litre VVT-i or 2.0-litre D-4D engines; the 1.6 is available with the option of automatic transmission. On-the-road prices start at £11,595.

COROLLA RANGE CHANGES

There is no change to the specification of the Corolla T2, T Spirit and T3 saloon and estate, but the 1.4 and 1.6-litre VVT-i and 1.4 and 2.0-litre D-4D T3 five-door models adopt the same extra equipment features as the Colour Collection, with the added bonus of a full palette of exterior paint finishes. In line with market demand, Toyota has suspended production of the three-door T3, but three-door T2 models are still available.
