

Toyota Launches Sports Accessories Range

28 November 2002

A bespoke range of sports accessories has been launched by Toyota for MR2 Roadster, Celica, Yaris T Sport and RAV4 models. Available at Toyota dealerships nationwide, the sports accessories range allows customers to personalise their Toyota with body kits and unique interior finishes with prices starting from as little as £20.

True sports car enthusiasts are now able to enhance the MR2 Roadster's already strong road presence with twin exhausts, rear bumper extensions and a choice of two rear spoilers from around £800. In addition, lowering springs from £167 give a firmer ride for maximum driving enjoyment. A range of chrome accessories are also available with a choice of styling bar, fuel cap surround, scuff plates, interior surrounds and vent control rings.

Celica customers also have a choice of body kits including front and side skirts from £400 and a choice of two rear spoilers from £170, which add to the Celica's dramatic profile. Twin exhausts from £456 give a racy appearance with extra output resonance, while the addition of 17-inch alloy wheels and lowering springs mean the Celica can hug the ground even closer.

Sports accessories on MR2 Roadster and Celica are suitable for both 2000 model year and 2003 model range.

RAV4 customers can choose from a range of sports accessories including a sports rear spoiler priced from £153, unique 16 or 17-inch alloy wheels starting from £640, an integrated grille and bumper mesh insert from £237, as well as front spats with integrated spot lights from £257.

Younger customers aspiring to the 1.5-litre Yaris T Sport image are now able to drive a standard Yaris with the latest sports accessories and yet still enjoy affordable insurance grouping.

The Yaris body kit includes front and rear sports spoilers and side skirts available from £390, while a choice of two designs of 15-inch alloy wheels are available from £377. Lowering springs from £138 give a firmer ride while a polished chrome tail pipe from £20 delivers the finishing touch.
